Uni Knot

Step 1 Pass the end loop through eye.

Step 2 Form a loop around the standing end.

Step 3 Wrap the end around the standing end inside the loop five times.

Step 4 Lubricate and pull the knot tight. Slide the knot down against the eye.

Step 5 Trim the tag end.

Uses: The Uni Knot is a versatile knot which can be adapted to many purposes including snelling; connecting hooks, swivels and lures with a loop; and joining two lines.

Tying it: The version shown here is tied to an eye. When joining two lines, each knot is made round the other standing end.

Advantages: It is fairly easy to tie in the dark with practice. Some anglers find it easier to tie than the Improved Clinch and nearly as dependable. When tied round a large diameter eye, it may retain strength well, but if used to join two lines, like other knots where a line passes round itself, a breaking strain of 50% of ideal performance is more likely.
